Nixon taps St. Louis lawyer for sports complex authority

St. Louis Business Journal

Missouri Gov. Jay Nixon has named Jerome Wallach to serve on the St. Louis Regional Convention and Sports Complex Authority.

Wallach, a practicing attorney for 43 years, is president of The Wallach Law Firm, which concentrates on property tax appeals, real estate litigation, land use and zoning law.

The authority oversees financing, design and construction of the domed stadium/convention center expansion and administers annual preservation funding in accordance with state statute, by-laws and bond indentures.

Wallach's term ends May 31, 2014.
